News for the parishes of the Carlford Benefice

August 2014

A horizon with possibilities....

'There is an old Arabic saying that there are two kinds of people; those who accept the horizon as the limit of possibility, and those who discover, as they journey, that there is always more to be discovered beyond every horizon.' I share this sentiment now, with confidence that the grace of God has enabled my journey and growth over the past 60+ years, but probably most so in the last ten! So an old dog can learn new tricks!

When I was little, the month of August seemed a vast space between ending one term and beginning another. Somewhere, in the middle of this space was a horizon, beyond which September beckoned, but I couldn't see or imagine its many opportunities for learning and growth. It was worlds away from mindful appreciation.

The other day, when talking with a young man, 30 years my junior, who'd asked - pointing at my dog collar - if I'd always been a 'rev', I found myself saying that "I never dreamt I would one day become an ordained priest or that I would be sharing conversation about how God changes people's lives and seeks to bring out the best in who we are." Whilst I believe God loves each of us unconditionally, sometimes life-events, particularly those that cause mental struggle or emotional pain, distort our attitude towards God. Our faith, and close relationships in turn can be bruised and any idea towards change, renewal and new growth seems improbable or impossible even. With that scenario, 'hope' dies, and life can sour.

Hearing his story and current plight, I pray that he'll be led, albeit unexpectedly, to a new place of peace, reconciliation and hope. It's unlikely that we'll meet again to discover the outcome, but our brief God-filled conversation was an important meeting of minds and maybe one that will carry him over his currently troubled horizon, for his sharing of situation and need prompted intercession. This of course is at the heart of Christian worship, when we pray through Jesus Christ for the well being of one another, friend and stranger.

The Holy Scriptures teach that 'hope' is born from God: that Christ is with us through his Spirit bearing our trials and struggles and sharing our joys (Matthew 28: 16-20). And perhaps more mysteriously, 'All things are possible with God' (Mark 10:27) most especially, the reconciliation of relationships.

This concept has been beautifully retold in a touching story, called 'The unlikely pilgrimage of Harold Fry' written by Rachel Joyce. Like all good storytelling, it made me both laugh and cry, and I commend it to you, for summertime reading (tissues ready). It will invite you to travel both back and forwards, thinking of your relationships and life events, and lead you to a better place, way beyond your initial imagining, through the mystery of God.

'FROM THE RECTOR'

Our congratulations, love and prayers to Jane Woods and Richard Pepper, who have been selected for Reader training in the diocese. Their training takes 3 years and it is a big commitment they are making- so our thanks to them and our prayers for them as they prepare for ministry among us as Readers. In the meantime both Jane and Richard will be leading aspects of our worship as part of their training.
